

How have we acknowledged the principle of "Learning is a developmental process of accommodation, assimilation, or rejection to construct new conceptual structures, meaningful representations, or new mental models."

What deliberate things did we do?	What was the effect?	What questions do we have?
Video - 3 min - sharing a technique - oral language. Shared readings - schoolwide developments.	Modelling - sharing - picking up new techniques Reflective, empowering, Develops collegiality - respecting diversity, makes process easier, sharing	How effective across cluster schools - or is it individual school? What protocols needed? - How can we work together to achieve our ^{own} common yet retain our at culture.